

Light in the Darkness

There's a light in the darkness
Somewhere for everyone
There's a light in the darkness
It's not shining very bright
In fact it seems to me that it's fading every moment
Fading – and soon it is gone
And there I'm standing in a world of darkness
Knowing no way back and forth
Caged within my own limited vision
My heart keeps telling me
That hope does never fade
But my mind does not approve

There's a light in the darkness
Don't ignore it's call
There's a light in the darkness
If you are looking after all
In fact it seems to me
That you chose to ignore it
To just pretend
It is not here
So you're standing in the darkness
Knowing no way back and forth
Caught in your cradled illusion
Your heart is telling you
That there's someone waiting for you
But your mind blocks every try

There's a light in the darkness
Small and warm
There's a light in the darkness
It does mean no harm
The opposite is true – it shelters you at night
Shelters from the cold of solitude
And there I'm standing in a world of darkness
I've lost every faith and hope
Caught in all my fear and awe depression
My heart yells loud at me, that hope must never fade
but soon my heart is frozen too.

There's a light in the darkness
If you just would accept it
There's a light in the darkness
I'm waiting there for you
But it will take a lifetime
Before you start to move
Because it's so much easier
To back in your depression
And I'm standing in the open light
Waiting for you day and night
Hoping you would free your mind
And come to me.
Let your heart control you
It's easier that way
Drop all your defenses
And let go.
